MATCH PREVIEW

AT SEATTLE REIGN FC

Friday, August 1, at 7:30 p.m., Angel City Football Club is on the road against Seattle Reign FC. The game will stream live on NWSL+ and Paramount+, and regionally on FanDuel Sports Network, with an English-language radio broadcast on iHeart. Angel City will host a watch party at Rock & Brews in El Segundo.

Matchup

Angel City's last regular-season game was a 0–1 loss at home to Kansas City. Forward Bia Zaneratto scored the single goal for the top-ranked Current.

ACFC also played two friendlies in July. The first match was a 1-1 draw against NorCal rival Bay FC on July 19, which saw midfielder Jun Endo score a goal for the first time since suffering an injury in the 2024 NWSL preseason. The other exhibition was last week against the USL Super League Carolina Ascent FC, which they won 4–2; forward Alyssa Thompson scored all four goals in that match, the most in club history in all competitions.

Seattle faced Utah in their most recent NWSL match on the road on June 21, winning 4–1. Midfielder Ji So-Yun and forward Maddie Dahlien each scored one for Seattle, with forward Emeri Adames earning a brace to round out the scoring.

ACFC last faced the Reign on March 30 of this year, winning 2–1 at home. They are 3–4–0 (W–L–D) all-time against Seattle.

LA are currently in 11th place with a 4–6–3 record. Seattle are in sixth at 6–4–3.

Scouting Report

The Reign have earned their place in the standings mainly on the strength of a tough defense, as the team has conceded just 13 goals, putting them in the top four in the league defensively. The team has conceded more than one goal on three occasions—one of those against Angel City—and kept a clean sheet in three games, against Portland, Louisville, and league-leading Kansas City.

In that sense, 2025 has been a return to form for the Reign, who have had a top-four defense three of the last four years. 2024, the team's worst season since 2013, saw them concede a whopping 44 goals, the most in the league. That was a stark contrast from the team's other seasons since the 2020 pandemic, especially 2022, where they earned the league's best defensive record—allowing just 19 goals—en route to winning the Shield.

The Reign offense has been comparatively uninspired this year, as the team has notched just 17 goals, putting them in 10th place leaguewide for that statistic. Four of those came from the club's leading scorer, forward Emeri Adames, a 19-year-old who signed with Seattle in 2024 under the U-18 entry mechanism.

Sneak Peek

Last week, Angel City fans got an early look at the team before the second half of the regular season gets underway when the club took on USL Super League side Carolina Ascent.

Most notably, forward Alyssa Thompson set a club record for single-game goals in all competitions, bagging all four for the hosts. After ACFC went down 1–0 early, Thompson took control of the game, equalizing in the 30th minute. Midfielder Kennedy Fuller set up the first two goals, while forward Riley Tiernan assisted the final entry.

The third goal was a penalty won by forward Sveindís Jónsdóttir, making her first appearance for Angel City. Jónsdóttir signed with the club in May, but didn't arrive in LA until the summer break. The 24-year-old promises to add both offensive punch and creative flair at ACFC, having tallied 22 goals and 16 assists with her last team, VfL Wolfsburg.

Another highlight was the return of forward Jun Endo at BMO Stadium. Endo, an original ACFC player, had not played in over a year after tearing her ACL in the 2024 preseason. She was removed from the season-ending injury list in June and was named to the roster several times before the break, but hadn't seen playing time until the summer friendlies.

ALEX STRAUS

Head Coach

Alex Straus has been head coach of Angel City FC since June 2025.

Before arriving at Angel City, Straus had been the head coach of Bayern Munich Women since the 2022–2023 season. He led the team to three straight league wins, also winning the DFB-Pokal cup and DFB-Supercup in his final season with the club. Straus was previously the head coach at IL Sandviken in his native Norway, in two stints: one in 2018, and again from 2020–2022. In 2021, he made history by leading the club to their first-ever Toppserien league title and a Norwegian Cup final. In the interim, he was the head coach of Norway's U-19 and U-23 Women's National Teams.

From 2014–2017, Straus was an assistant coach, then the head of youth development, at Strømsgodset in the Norwegian men's top flight. He arrived at Strømsgodset by way of Nest-Sotra, where he started as an assistant and was later named head coach. He helped lead that team to promotion from the third tier to the second tier. Straus's first coaching job was at IL Varegg, his hometown club, where he also ended his playing career.

Straus hails from Bergen, Norway.

He led the group from a last-place finish in 2013 to two consecutive playoff appearances, including an appearance in the NWSL Final in 2015.

He was head coach of the Portland Thorns from 2016–2021, leading the team to five top-three finishes. Parsons helped the club acquire a long list of world-class players, including Sophia (Smith) Wilson, Sam Coffey, Lindsey (Horan) Heaps, Emily Sonnett, Ellie Carpenter, Amandine Henry, and Nadia Nadim, as well as up-and-coming players such as Olivia Moultrie, Yazmeen Ryan, and Morgan Weaver. Under his leadership, the team won two NWSL Shields, in 2016 and 2021, and a championship in 2017.

After leaving Portland, Parsons served as head coach for the Netherlands Women's National Team from 2021–2022. During his tenure, he guided the Dutch to the quarterfinals of the 2022 UEFA European Women's Championships.

He most recently had a second stint at the Spirit in 2023.
